

DEDICATION

With great pleasure, the editors and members of the Seton Hall Legislative Journal dedicate this first book of Volume 13 to former New Jersey Congressman Peter W. Rodino, Jr.

Throughout his forty years in the House of Representatives, Congressman Rodino served both New Jersey and the nation with honor and distinction. For his tireless efforts in securing justice and freedom for all, America owes Congressman Rodino a debt which it cannot repay. His presence in the House of Representatives will surely be missed by colleagues and constituents alike.

Seton Hall University School of Law is truly fortunate to include this great statesman as a member of its faculty. Congressman Rodino's knowledge and wisdom will inspire future lawyers to use the law as a means for fairness and justice and will enrich and stimulate the entire law school community. We at the Seton Hall Legislative Journal welcome Congressman Rodino and wish him much luck and success in the future.
