I. Course Description

A few years after the African decade of independence (the 1960s), conflicts and the accompanying forced population movements spread dramatically, and the peoples of Africa faced enormous political, security, and economic challenges. The euphoria of independence from colonial powers that began in 1957 with the independence of Ghana and Guinea immediately gave way to dictatorships, political oppression, and instability and endless conflicts. The early optimism, which was shared by almost all of the newly-liberated peoples, was replaced by uncertainty and even hopelessness. While it is true that there have been a few countries that had fared better than, and the state of African states has become more encouraging recently, many still find themselves in a political, social, and economic quagmire from which they could not easily extricate themselves.

This course is an attempt at exploring the dynamics of conflicts and forced population movements, particularly refugees in Africa. Included in the course are such issues as colonial legacy and the nature of the present African state, political and economic dependence on outside powers, politicized ethnicity, and foreign interventions. All of these have directly or indirectly contributed to the massive forced population movements of the present and of the recent past. Such movements, on the whole, have posed enormous challenges and have had a more negative impact on the individual and on African inter-state relationships.

This course will primarily examine these challenges but will also interrogate whether or not such forced population movements have also contributed positively to the well-being of the host nation. To this end, the course examines possible interrelationships between conflicts and forced population movements, settlement patterns, and repatriations. The instructor hopes that, by the end of the semester, each student will have developed an increased interest in the study of forced population movements in Africa, particularly refugee movements, and an awareness of the extent to which these population groups have the potential to negatively affect international peace and security. As students of Diplomacy and International Relations, you are expected to think in terms of policy issues that will contribute to the resolution of the seemingly intractable problem.

Each student will write and present a well-developed research paper on any topic related to forced population movements in Africa, either in a specific country (that is, at the national level), or group of countries (that is, at the group or regional level), or at the continental level. You may conduct a comparative study of a conflict and refugee situation in Africa with a conflict and the accompanying refugee situation in other parts of the world. Prior approval of the topic by the instructor is required. The class sessions will conclude with student PowerPoint presentation of the study.

II. Required Readings

Each student must have copies of articles for personal use. Where necessary, the instructor will make available numerous book chapters and articles from scholarly journals on conflicts and refugee formations for student use. The following book is recommended:

Bariagaber, A. 2006. Conflict and the Refugee Experience: Flight, Exile, and Repatriation in the Horn of Africa, Aldershot (UK): Ashgate.

III. Course Competencies

- ability to identify and explain refugee and migrant crisis wherever it exists
- demonstrated knowledge of factors/variables that contribute to refugee movements
- demonstrated knowledge of the dynamics under which refugees are activated and mobilized to affect the situation in which they find themselves
- ability to argue and explain the extent to which conflict types are co-related to forms of refugee situations
- ability to propose sensible formulas to resolve the present African refugee crisis

IV. Course Activities

- lectures
- final examination
- research paper
- research paper PPT presentation
- student presentation of summary and critique of articles
- current refugee-related news/issues as reported in the media

V. Course Requirements and Grading

Class sessions will combine lectures, presentations, and discussions of assigned readings by the instructor and students. Students will receive grades based on the following:

1. An in-class final examination carrying a maximum total of 50 (40%) points occurring on the date indicated in the course schedule below.
2. A 2-3 page summary and critique of two articles carrying a maximum of 10 points (8%) to be presented in class.
3. A well-developed research paper carrying a maximum total of 50 (40%) points due on the date indicated in the course schedule below.
4. PowerPoint presentation of the final paper carrying a maximum total of 10 (8%) points to occur on dates as indicated in the course schedule below.
5. Class participation carrying a maximum total of 5 (4%) points.

Final course grade will be awarded according to the following scale:

115 – 125	= A
110 – 114	= A-
105 – 109	= B+
100 – 104	= B
95 – 99	= B-
90 – 94	= C+
85 – 89	= C
80 – 84	= C-
75 – 79	= D+
70 – 74	= D
< 70	= F

Remarks

1. Final examination questions will be based on class lectures and reading assignments. It is imperative that students take class notes and do all the readings and assignments.
2. It is very important that the research paper is completed and handed on time, both in hard copy and electronically (as an email attachment). The instructor will deduct significant points and/or reject any project not handed on time. Moreover, each student is required to discuss the topic of his/her proposal with the instructor well in advance of November 17 due date. Failure to make presentations on the assigned date will result in a zero point for the presentation.
3. Plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty will be reported to the administration, and may result in a lowered or failing grade for the course and up to possible dismissal from the School of Diplomacy. See University and School standards for academic conduct here:

<<http://www13.shu.edu/offices/student-life/community-standards/upload/Seton-Hall-University-Student-Code-of-Conduct.pdf>>

<<http://www.shu.edu/academics/diplomacy/academic-conduct.cfm>>

4. The research paper will make an in-depth study of a topic to be selected by the student and approved by the instructor. The length of the paper, of course, depends on the issue(s) raised: therefore, there is no set limit on the length. However, it is preferred that the paper is between 18 and 22 double-spaced pages, with font size of 12, and a one-inch margin on all sides. The instructor will give more guidance on the research paper in due course.

5. Students are expected to attend classes regularly and will be held responsible for materials covered in class. Attendance will be taken at the beginning of each class. A high rate of attendance will be an asset in determining borderline grades.

6. Absence from an examination will result in a zero point for that examination unless the student is able to provide a convincing evidence for his/her absence. In the latter case, a make-up examination will be administered at a time suitable to the student and the instructor. This make-up examination will most likely be different from the first.

7. Policy on Incompletes: Incompletes will be given only in exceptional cases for emergencies. Students wishing to request a grade of Incomplete must provide documentation to support the request accompanied by a Course Adjustment Form (available from the Diplomacy Main Office) to the professor before the date of the final examination. If the incomplete request is approved, the professor reserves the right to specify the new submission date for all missing coursework. Students who fail to submit the missing course work within this time period will receive a failing grade for all missing coursework and a final grade based on all coursework assigned. Any Incomplete not resolved within one calendar year of receiving the Incomplete or by the time of graduation (whichever comes first) automatically becomes an "FI" (which is equivalent to an F). It is the responsibility of the student to make sure they have completed all course requirements within the timeframe allotted. Please be aware that Incompletes on your transcript will impact financial aid and academic standing.

8. It is the policy and practice of Seton Hall University to promote inclusive learning environments. If you have a documented disability you may be eligible for reasonable accommodations in compliance with University policy, the Americans with Disabilities Act, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, and/or the New Jersey Law against Discrimination. Please note, students are not permitted to negotiate accommodations directly with professors. To request accommodations or assistance, please self-identify with the Office for Disability Support Services (DSS), Duffy Hall, Room 67 at the beginning of the semester. For more information or to register for services, contact DSS at (973) 313-6003 or by e-mail at DSS@shu.edu.

9. Papers should utilize one of the Chicago Manual of Style citation formats: Author-Date or Notes and Bibliography. The guidelines for these formats are posted in the course Blackboard.

10. It is very important that students maintain high class etiquette.
