Seton Hall University Walsh Gallery is pleased to announce the exhibition Diverse Visions: An Exhibition of Contemporary Art from Mainland China and Taiwan, on view from January 15 through March 9, 2007. This exhibition is free and open to the public!

This exciting exhibition brings together works of seven contemporary artists from Mainland China and Taiwan, who are working in a wide variety of media and styles. These artists have all traveled to the United States to further their studies or to work in New York's thriving art environment. Some have stayed in the U.S. and others have returned to their homelands. But as a result of their travels and international experiences, all are faced with the challenge of reconciling their own artistic and cultural traditions, with a wide range of Western influences. The works that have resulted from this cross-pollination of cultures are diverse yet they all result from their authors' shared goal of seeking a fitting visual mode to convey cultural duality.

Additional Programming

Programming for Diverse Visions includes a gallery talk by digital artist, graphic design professor, and recent author C.J. Yeh. C.J. will speak about his work as a graphic designer as well as his independent work in fine arts. Participating artist Ruijun Shen will give a demonstration of silk painting and also present a gallery talk about her unique style of painting, which combines traditional Chinese artistic methods, with contemporary forms of expression, exploring subjects that are traditionally not painted.

For 150 years, Seton Hall University has been a catalyst for leadership, developing the whole student, mind, heart and spirit. Seton Hall combines the resources of a large university with the personal attention of a small liberal arts college. Its attractive suburban campus is only 14 miles by train, bus or car to New York City, with the wealth of employment, internship, cultural and entertainment opportunities the city offers. Seton Hall is a Catholic university that embraces students of all races and religions, challenging each to better the world with integrity, compassion and a commitment to serving others.
